

Jasper 353934: What to Expect

Jasper is a graduate of the Behavior Modification Program and needs a special home. Jasper is a sweet and sensitive boy who is ready to find his forever home. Jasper may be a little timid at first, but once he feels safe and secure, his charming, playful personality shines through. He loves being showered with pets and cuddles, savoring tasty treats, zooming around the room, sunbathing atop his window-side cat tower, and playing with his favorite toys. While Jasper may never be a social butterfly with everyone he meets, with patience and time to build trust, he'll form a deep bond with his special person and become a fun-loving, energetic companion.

Jasper was surrendered to OHS by his previous owner, who was no longer able to provide care for him. They described him as a playful, affectionate kitten who loves to cuddle. When Jasper arrived at OHS he displayed fearful, shy behaviors that presented as cowering, trembling, and hiding beneath his stool in his kennel. Because of the high stress he was experiencing, the decision was made to place him in our Behavior Modification Program. The environment in the BMOD program is better suited at helping cats feel comfortable in a shelter environment. With the larger kennel space, access to windows, increased enrichment, and dedicated one-on-one time with our team, we were able to help him decompress and learn more about his personality.

Jasper was worried and overwhelmed during his first few days in BMOD. He spent most of his time hiding on his cat tower, quietly observing us with wide, cautious eyes. If anyone approached too closely, he would hiss and dart away, telling us that he was frightened and needed space. We respected his boundaries, spoke to him softly, and offered treats to help him build positive associations with people.

It didn't take long for us to discover one of Jasper's favorite things—toys! The moment we brought out a wand toy, he transformed into an agile hunter, expertly stalking his target before launching himself spectacularly into the air with impressive acrobatic leaps. By pairing our presence with two of Jasper's favorite things—playtime and treats—he gradually learned that people bring good things, helping him build confidence and trust. Today, he eagerly sits at the front of his kennel, meowing to let us know he's ready for his next play session.

As Jasper's confidence grew, so did his trust in people. He gradually began approaching us to sniff our hands before leaning in for gentle pets, and it wasn't long before he was climbing into our laps and seeking out affection. Jasper is the definition of a cuddly kitten! When he isn't racing around the room in playful bursts or lounging in a sunny window, you'll find him happily curled up in a lap or snuggled close in someone's arms, soaking up all the love and affection he can get.

We also quickly noticed that Jasper was intrigued by the other kitties in the program, watching them play with cautious curiosity. As his confidence grew, we introduced him to several feline friends and discovered that he absolutely loves playing with other cats. Jasper has an exuberant, rough-and-tumble play style and delights in energetic wrestling matches, chasing games, and playful pouncing. He may do well in a home with another cat who is confident, playful, and comfortable with his energetic, boisterous personality. A feline companion who can appropriately communicate boundaries and let Jasper know when they've had enough will help him continue developing positive social skills while enjoying the companionship he loves. Jasper would also be perfectly content as the only kitty in his new home, where he can soak up all the playtime, attention, and affection for himself.

Jasper has blossomed into the playful, sweet, and happy boy we always knew he could be. While he can still be startled by sudden movements or unfamiliar situations and may briefly run to hide, he recovers quickly with gentle reassurance and encouragement. He has made tremendous progress during his time in the BMOD program, and we're confident he will continue to flourish in the right home. If your home is missing a playful, affectionate companion with gorgeous green eyes and irresistibly soft, tiger-striped fur, Jasper is ready to fill that role—and your heart!

His new family should expect that he will hide for a few weeks, possibly longer. You'll need to introduce him to new things slowly. Jasper typically flees and hides when overwhelmed or scared. It's important to provide him with a small room with appropriate hiding spots for him to relax in, such as his own hidey bed. Hiding spots that are confined to a tight spot and out of reach from you will make it difficult to build a bond with him. The room you set him up in will be the catalyst for how quickly he acclimates. Start thinking now which room in your home would be best for Jasper to settle into. If it's a bedroom, can he get under the bed or dresser making it difficult to spend time with him? If it's a laundry room or bathroom will the constant in and out of people and noises associated with these rooms be too much for him? By having a room without a lot of foot traffic and with appropriate hiding spots, it will allow you to work on building a relationship. While in his hiding spot, use calm voices and offer tasty treats to show you are not a threat. Place a small amount of wet food or a treat on a spoon and offer it to Jasper while in his hidey spot. Over time, by continuing to do this, Jasper will become more comfortable and recognize that yummy food = people, therefore creating a positive association between the two.

Here's how to help Jasper during your first months together:

This step is crucial in helping Jasper acclimate to his new home. Confine Jasper to one cat-proof room in your house. Provide Jasper with a litter box, food, water, and a bed. Ensure he cannot get to inappropriate hiding spots (under the bed, in a closet, on top of a cabinet, etc.). Provide him with a safe, comfortable hiding place instead like his cat carrier, a hidey-bed, or a large dog crate covered with a blanket.

Spend time with Jasper in his room. Don't force him out of his hiding spot. Instead, encourage him to come out on his own using happy talk, offering a toy or treats. Once he is using the litter box, eating regularly, and coming out of hiding to interact with you, you can start introducing him to the rest of your home. Start by propping the door open and allowing him to come out on his own. Don't force it! If you come across something that you can tell Jasper is worried about, allow him to hang back or hide if he chooses to do so.

Continue to provide a safe space. Even when Jasper has started exploring the rest of the house, give him a safe space that he can retreat to. When he is in his safe space, insist that guests leave him alone and try to ignore him yourself. That way, when he comes out, you can reward his bravery with your attention.

No visitors (at first). Allow Jasper time to adjust to your house, routine, and lifestyle before introducing him to new people. When you have visitors over, give Jasper the freedom to make the decision to interact (or not!). Ask new people to ignore him – or if Jasper seems curious or interested, have the new person toss his treats or offer a favorite toy. We want exciting, good things to come from new people.

Practice crate training. Leave his carrier out all the time, so it's just a part of his normal environment. Add a bed and keep the door securely propped open so he can go in and out on his own, making sure the door won't swing shut and frighten him. You can also clicker train his to run into the carrier on cue. Helping Jasper get comfortable with his carrier will make it easier when it's time to visit the vet.

Visiting the vet: Unless it's an emergency, give Jasper time to bond to you before taking him to the vet. Vet visits will more than likely be scary, but if he already trusts you, your presence may help him feel more comfortable.

Patience will come in handy for you. Jasper is a cat that needs an understanding owner who has the time and desire to allow him to adapt in his own time. He may never be a social butterfly, and that's okay! Getting to know him and watching him come out of his shell will be extremely rewarding. Celebrate those small victories.
