

My Pet Is A Good Friend To Me Because...

Sadie Bernard

While my family was eating dinner, in walks this stray cat that we had been feeding for a while. We had no idea who had left the door open. We decided to put her back outside and SHUT the door. Five minutes later, she walked in again, and we really got freaked out. We knew that it wasn't just a coincidence that she had come in a second time. She had chosen us, so we decided to keep her.

One reason Kiki is a good friend is because she's like the brother or sister I never had. She keeps me company and makes me laugh. She is a good friend because she will always be there to listen and purr. Last year my parents got divorced, and it got really hard for me. I felt like I could never talk to anyone about it because it was always stressful at my house. It made me feel better just to be with my cat in my room.

I am a good friend to my kitty because I take care of her when she's sick. She has diabetes, and my mom and I had to give her insulin shots daily for a while. She eventually got better and this taught me how to be patient and kind to sick animals. Taking care of each other is part of being good friends.

As you can see, my cat has helped me through some pretty rough times and vice versa. Pets make good friends because they are great listeners and don't judge you. Everyone should get a chance to feel the love of a pet-bestie.
